Catapult Health Raises $10 Million in Series B Funding
Launches Strategic Partnership with UCHealth

DALLAS, TX, November 2, 2016 -- Catapult Health, a national preventive healthcare practice that brings technology-enabled checkups to worksites across the country, announced the completion of a $10M Series B financing which includes a significant investment by a new partner, UCHealth. Catapult Health's existing investors also participated in the round, including founders Deborah and David Michel, Managing Member and Chief Technology Officer, Jeffrey O. Smith, Ph.D., and Series A investor Health Enterprise Partners. The company will use the funds to accelerate its rapid national customer growth and expand its team of board certified nurse practitioners who conduct Catapult's onsite health evaluations.

UCHealth is a nationally-recognized nonprofit system of seven hospitals and more than 100 clinics based in Colorado. Catapult will work closely with UCHealth to launch the company's service within the system's delivery network in 2017. "UCHealth's community wellness strategy is focused on working with employers and payers to keep people healthy in addition to caring for them when they have health concerns," said Bill Neff, UCHealth chief medical officer. "Catapult's concentration on preventive medicine and checkups delivered at worksites allows employers to reduce employee health risks and more effectively manage chronic disease."

Catapult has recently proven the effectiveness of its workplace checkup model. A four-year cohort analysis of annual checkup results from over 6,000 Catapult patients in 54 employer groups documented remarkable longitudinal results including a 66% drop in uncontrolled hypertension, a 22% drop in metabolic syndrome, and a 57% improvement in blood pressure medication use. David Michel, Catapult's founder and CEO remarked, "Catapult is best-in-the-world at delivering technology-enabled preventive checkups at the worksite. Our nurse practitioners who meet privately with employees via Catapult's videoconferencing platform are transforming lives for the better. This exciting new strategic partnership with UCHealth fits perfectly with our mission of empowering individuals to improve their health."
